

Welcome!

May your Journey into Kink by a wonderful adventure filled with safe yet sexy fun, personal growth and friendship.

There may be many new terms and acronyms that you are unfamiliar with. You can find a BDSM dictionary online at:

<http://www.differentequals.com/glossary.html>

Your Local BDSM Community:

There is a group on Fetlife whose entire purpose is to help those new to BDSM find groups and information to make their journey a bit safer. This Group is A.W.A.R.E.

They can be found here:

<https://fetlife.com/groups/114268>

If you are not familiar with Fetlife, it is the Facebook for Kinky persons. Accounts are free. When you go to check out the above group you will need an account.

Resources Continued

Sub Frenzy

<http://goo.gl/zAlclu>

About Consent

<http://goo.gl/9gjVn5>

BDSM Checklist

<http://goo.gl/NGynMY>

National Coalition to Sexual Freedom

<https://ncsfreedom.org/>

Aropedeevil's Website

www.aropedeevil.com

50 Shades of BDSM

Kink Guide by

Let's Talk About Consent

BDSM Practitioners Typically follow some sort of Consent Rule. Some use SSC (Safe, Sane Consensual), Some use RACK (Risk Aware Consensual Kink) and some use PRICK (Personal Responsibility Informed Consensual Kink).

Be aware that many of the kinky activities come with their own risks. Learn what can be done to mitigate these risks. Do not assume that the persons you interact with have all the answers, experience and know how! You are responsible for informing yourself.

Consent is a cornerstone to BDSM. Consent means asking before touching, knowing what you are agreeing to, asking questions and sharing pertinent information.

Consent is ongoing and requires clear communication.

Safety Tips

Know what you are doing! This means asking questions and researching the type of play you are interested in.

Play at public dungeons when playing with someone new to you. This allows you the safety of a group setting.

Have a spotter! When doing play that has risks, having a 3rd person you trust there to help in the event there is an issue to help can be a life saver!

About Safe Words:
Some play involves being able to role play the part of an unwilling victim. To be certain that everyone is consenting many practitioners use safe words. A popular system is the traffic light system. Red means STOP, yellow means CAUTION and green means ALL GOOD! Before you play make sure that all parties agree on the same safe words. Use these words anytime you need to.
More Info Found HERE

Resources:
Negotiation Handout:
<http://goo.gl/z8mdTQ>

Assertive Communication For Play
<http://goo.gl/ILmHnW>

Sub Space/Top Space
<http://goo.gl/Kz6kr3>

Sub Drop
<http://goo.gl/2SabBR>

